Dispute Resolution Policy

We are committed to meeting if not exceeding our clients' expectations whenever possible. As much as we all dislike receiving complaints, we recognise that dissatisfied clients have a right to complain and to have their complaint handled quickly and directly. Clients who take the time to complain may well still have confidence in us and want to continue dealing with us.

Complaints are an opportunity to obtain feedback from clients about their product or service experience. We use them as a way to assist us to rapidly change service style and market focus to meet clients' needs, maintain clients' confidence and continuously improve our service and relationship with our clients.

Complaints are a valuable and important part of ongoing business relationships. They provide a flag to potential problems and difficulties, and a repetition of complaints can indicate a recurring systemic problem that needs immediate attention. They enable us to provide solutions to any problems rather than have remedies imposed by an external body.

The prompt resolution of complaints is a good indicator of whether we are consistent and presenting the best possible image to clients and prospective clients. It enables us to prevent disputes from becoming entrenched.

All staff must comply with our internal dispute resolution procedures.

We do not charge a fee to consumers who make a complaint.

Our Complaints Officer can be contacted on Ph: 1300 100 500

Our Complaints Contact Person is responsible for:

Dealing with and attempting to resolve all client complaints which cannot be resolved by the providing clarification or information;

Advising clients of their rights to lodge complaints with our external dispute resolution scheme;

Managing all disputes with clients;

Liaising with our external dispute resolution scheme; and

Dealing with the MFAA and the MFAA Disciplinary Tribunal as necessary.

We provide the following information about our internal and external dispute resolution procedures:

We display a leaflet publicising our external dispute resolution scheme in our offices at all times ; we publish the name and contact details of our Complaints Contact Person and a guide to our Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure on our website; and we give a guide to our Internal Dispute Resolution Procedure to any consumer who asks for it or when they want to make a complaint of dispute.

We will give you a written acknowledgement and a written response to your complaint and the reasons for reaching a particular decision on the complaint and will adequately address the issues that are raised in your complaint.

We will when determining the appropriate remedy take into consideration all factors and the relevant codes of conduct and concepts of fairness and relevant industry best practice.

We will review our Internal Dispute Resolution Procedures every 3 years to ensure our complaints system is operating effectively.

If you are in a country that is a member of the European Economic Area (EEA), the EU General Data Protection Regulation 2016/679 ('GDPR') governs the way we collect, use, hold, process and disclose your personal information. Under the GDPR, we are a data controller. We make decisions on how and why your personal information is processed.

- financial details such as your tax file number; and
- other information we think is necessary.

When the law authorises or requires us to collect information

We may collect information about you because we are required or authorised by law to collect it. There are laws which require us to collect personal information. For example, we require personal information to verify your identity under Australian Anti-Money Laundering law.

What do we collect via your website activity?

If you're an internet customer of ours, we monitor your use of internet services to ensure we can verify you and can receive information from us, and to identify ways we can improve our services for you.

If you start but don't submit an on-line application, we can contact you using any of the contact details you've supplied to offer help completing it. The information in applications will be kept temporarily then destroyed if the application is not completed.

To improve our services and products, we sometimes collect de-identified information from web users. That information could include IP addresses or geographical information to ensure your use of our web applications is secure.

How do we collect your personal information?

How we collect and hold your information

Unless it's unreasonable or impracticable, we will try to collect personal information directly from you (referred to as 'solicited information'). For this reason, it's important that you help us to do this and keep your contact details up-to-date.

There are a number of ways in which we may seek information from you. We might collect your information when you fill out a form with us, when you've given us a call or used our website. We also find using electronic means, such as email or SMS, a convenient way to communicate with you and to verify your details<sup>1</sup>.

How we collect and hold your credit information

We will collect your credit information in the course of you answering the enquiries we make of you relating to the credit assistance you seek from us. In addition to what we say above about collecting information from other sources, other main sources for collecting credit information are:

- our service providers involved in helping us to process any application you make for credit through us.

What do we do when we get information we didn't ask for?

Sometimes, people share information with us we haven't sought out (referred to as 'unsolicited information'). Where we receive unsolicited personal information about you, we will check whether that information is reasonably necessary for our functions or activities. If it is, we'll handle this information the same way we do with other information we seek from you. If not, we'll ensure we do the right thing and destroy or de-identify it.

<sup>1</sup> However we'll never ask you for your security details in this way – if you are ever unsure, just contact us

When will we notify you that we have received your information?

When we receive personal information from you directly, we'll take reasonable steps to notify you how and why we collected your information, who we may disclose it to and outline how you can access it, seek correction of it or make a complaint.

Sometimes we collect your personal information from third parties. You may not be aware that we have done so. If we collect information that can be used to identify you, we will take reasonable steps to notify you of that collection.

We may store personal information physically or electronically with third party data storage providers. Where we do this, we use contractual arrangements to ensure those providers take appropriate measures to protect that information and restrict the uses to which they can put that information.

What happens when we no longer need your information?

We'll only keep your information for as long as we require it for our purposes. We may be required to keep some of your information for certain periods of time under law. When we no longer require your information, we'll ensure that your information is destroyed or de-identified.
